Significance

The West Coast Fossil Park at Langebaanweg is a five million year old fossil bed that was discovered in the floor of an open cast phosphate mine in the 1960s. Since then, researchers at the Iziko: South African Museum have amassed over one million vertebrate fossils from controlled excavations, surface collecting and bulk sampling in different parts of the mine. These fossils have achieved international acclaim by scientists for their superb preservation, abundance and richness in diversity to the extent that this locality is now widely regarded as possibly the most important Early Pliocene terrestrial fossil occurrence in the world.

The previous declaration of this site in terms of Government Notice 17457, dated 4 October 1996 is hereby withdrawn

Significance

De Hel is a heritage site with historical and archaeological value and is a landscape of high cultural significance. The site is a surviving remnant of a natural forest in this region where the Dutch East India Company (VOC) had a woodcutter's post at Witte Boomen (Wittebome). The site has links to ancient cattle tracks established by Khoekhoe pastoralists. It also has archaeological heritage resources dating from this period and may have unmarked burials.

Betekenis

Die Weskus Fossielpark by Langebaanweg is 'n navorsings- en paleotoerisme-onderneming by 'n 5-miljoenjaar oue fossielbed wat in die 1960s in die vloer van 'n oopskag fosfaatmyn ontdek is. Sedertdien het navorsers van Iziko: Suid-Afrikaanse Museum meer as 'n miljoen gewerwede fossiele uit beheerde uitgrawings, oppervlakversameling en grootmaat-steekproewe uit verskillende gedeeltes van die myn versamel. Hierdie fossiele het internasionale status verwerf vanweë hulle uitstekende bewaring, hoë voorkomfrekwensie en rykheid in diversiteit, in so 'n mate dat hierdie terrein nou grootliks as waarskynlik die wêreld se belangrikste Vroeë Plioseen-aardfossielterrein beskou word.

Die vorige verklaring van hierdie terrein in terme van Goewermentskennisgewing nr 17457, gedateer 4 Oktober 1996, word hiermee teruggetrek.
