Where "D" is the business day on which basic letters sent by ordinary post, registered mail or for signature on delivery are handed in at a post office or other official posting point or are inserted in a street posting box. Such handover or insertion must be before the advertised latest time of posting for that day.

The figure is the maximum number of business days elapsing after "D" until the basic letter is delivered to the address for which it is intended. For registered and signature on delivery mail, the "days elapsed" relates to arrival at the delivery post office and does not include the time needed to advise the addressee that basic letter is waiting to be collected.
